Thrown from a Wagon. A high-spirited colt attached to a train-ing "skeleton wagon" and driven by Henry Norton, a horse-trainer, took fright on E street, near Thirteen-and-a-half street north-west, about 11:50 o'clock this morning, and, west, about 11.30 o clock this morning, and, lecoming unmanageable, ran away. A sudden turn of the wagon threw Norton out, cutting a severe gash over the right eye, almost severing the right ear, and making several wounds on the head. He was removed to the Emergéncy Hospital in a cab, where the wounds were dressed. He was afterwards removed to his home in South Washington. The horse was caught after demolishing the forward part of the wagon.

AMUSEMENTS THIS WEEK. An Excellent List of Dramas and Con-

nerds. At Ford's Opera House, "A Moral Crime will be presented to night. It is a drams of the continual school, and has been suo sasfully given for weeks in New York and consfully given for weeks in New York and Brocklymby the Daine Square Theatre Company, which will produce it in this city with all the original scenary and setting, including more costumes and furniture, which has chiefed much favorable comment whereever the play has been produced. Of the company it is sufficient recommendation to say that it embraces Joseph Haworth, William Davidge, E. H. Sethern, H. E. Walton, James F. Dean, J. W.Pigot, Marie Prescott, Flora May Henry, Maggie Harold, Charlotte DeMusset and Jeonic Langdon. An accellent and enjoyable performance may be expected.

ALBAUGH'S GRAND OPERA-ROUSE. "Alone in London; or, a Woman Again the World," is the attraction at Albaugh the World," is the attraction at Albaugh's Grund Opera-Home this week. The Philadelphus, Hernite Chemicle says of it: "The chief the Area of Chemicle says of it: "The chief the arrival event of the week, which began with last evening's performance, was the first production on any stage of Robert Buchaman's "Alone in London; or, a Woman Agathst the World." It took place at the Chestaut Street Theatro before a large audience. Mr. Buchaman's production is destined to a successful run; the merits of the piece are excellent and at times brilliant; text strong; character painting; picture-sque stage settings, and a general sense of good dramatic work." The sale of reserved seats has been quite satisfactory.

NATIONAL THEATRE. The advance sale of seats for Harrison & Gourlay's presentation of "Skipped by the Light of the Moon" has more than sur-Light of the Moon" has more than surpassed the expectations of the managers. "Skipped" is one of those creations which needs to be seen to be appreciated. It is a continuous fusibade of fun, based on the experiences of two married men who go off on a lark and are interrupted by the unexpected arrival of their wives. The situations are ridiculous, but will be appreciated by many who have gone through the same line of experiences. The comedy had a good run here last season, and the prospect is favorable for a repetition of its success this week. this week.

NINTH STREET OPERA-HOUSE, This afternoon, the charming English ac tress, Claire Scott, made her first appearance before a Washington audience. This evening and Tuesday and Weitnesday nights Miss Scott will appear in that stirring drama by Sterling Boyne, entitled "Woman in Red." This will be the first production in Red." This will be the first production of this drama since the painty days of Lucilie Western and Mrs. D. P. Howers. On Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights "Leab, the Forsaken," will be played. her here. She is accompanied by M. Edmond Vergnet, tenor; Carlo Butt, baritone;
Luigi Casatt, violinist; Gustave Lewita, pianist; Sig. Carrano, flutist, and Paolo diorza, accompanists. Reserved seats can now be secured.

ST. CECILIA QUARTET CONCERT. The St. Cecilia Quartet will give its third annual concert at Congregational Church Wednesday night. This quartet is so well and favorably known that a mere announcement of its appearance in public is sufficient to bring out its friends. The St. Ceellia will be assisted by the Dudley Buck Male Quartet of Brooklyn, an organization well spoken of at its home. Reserved scats are now on sale.

DIME MUSEUM. At Barton & Logan's Dime Museum Frank I. Frayne begins an engagement today for positively one week only in "Si Sloems; or, Struck Oil," This piece is an old favorite, full of fun and startling effect, with plenty of good music interspersed throughout. Mr. Frayne's dog, Jack, an animal of extraordinary intelligence, will be introduced in the play.

THEATRE COMIQUE. The Theatre Comique presents a fresh array of beauty and talent this week, Λ first-class variety performance is an-nounced. It will be followed by the usual amusing afterpiece, introducing an Amazonian march.

Morizet. J. W. Barnes, the popular representative of "Morizet" champagne, bids fair to out rival all competitors in this city with the excellent article he represents. Public offi-cials and prominent cilizens who have had the pleasure of testing its qualities pro-nounce it unexcelled. Devoid of all intoxleating ingredients, it revives the depressed, and is the best kind of an appetizer. "Morizet" bids fair to predominate at private and state dinners the coming season.

How He was Relieved.

A tall old gray-haired carpenter named William D. Crampsey of 1012 F street was robbed of a gold watch and chain Saturday He complained to the police of the night. He complained to the police of the Fifth Precinct about 2 o'clock yesterday morning that a girl named Pearl Wallace, alias Kate Acton, had relieved him of his valuables at the wine-room of the Comique. Pearl was subsequently arrested. In the Police Court this morning she was committed for a hearing next Wednesday on a charge of grand larceny. The old man said he had treated to wine several times and she told him to wait for her at the door when she was going home and she left him standing there while she left by another door and escaped. door and escaped.

"You can put objectionable people out of your place," said the Court, "but you can't use such means as has been described." A fibre of $20 was imposed. The defendant noted an appeal.

Odd Experiences of Doctors. 'We have many queer experience in the practice of our profession," said the doctor, as he deftly dusted the powders on the little papers spread before him. "Only the other day I drove over to Ossian, seven miles away, to visit a patient, an old gentleman suffering from an incurable disease that I had been treating for some months. Tying my horse I walked to the house and entered the sitting-room without knocking. Judge of my sur-prise to see lying on a stretcher the dead body of my patient clad for burial, and his coffin upon the bier awalting its occupant. I had just time to note these things when the wife came in. these things when the wife came in, and simply saying 'good morning,' she slipped to a cupboard, and taking out an envelope containing money, emptled it upon the coffin-lid, and, counting out my fee, banded it to me, replaced the envelope in the cupboard, and left the room without saying a word. I had often been paid in the presence of my recovered patients, but never before with the stiff, stark evidence of the ineffectiveness of my favorite 'pathy' staring me in the face. CAR-FARE BEGGARS.

Well-Bressed Women Who Practice on Other People's Credniffy.

A woman, probably 50 years old. oked her head timidly into an Eighth street eigar store, in Philadelphia, recently, says the Press. She was very neatly dressed in black and gave every evidence of respectability.

"I beg pardon, sir," she said in a low voice, "but night I ask you to lend me a car fare. I have been shopping, and," with an embarrassed smile, "have spent more money than I intended. It's very awkward, but if you will be so kind—"

"Sorry, madam, but can't do it. Good day," was the abrupt reply of the steat man behind the cigar case, and the woman in black retired. "Why, that was a lady! Why were discourteous?" asked a by-

"No, she wasn't," was the reply. "! Know her racket. She's another of those car fare beggars. Why is she dressed so well? Because she makes money. I know two or three of them. A common street beggar don't expect more than a punny or two, but they more than a pointy or two, but they ask for six cents every time. I got on to that woman in a very funny way. She'd been in here two or three times, and I always helped her out. One morning out at home the door beli rang and I answered it. I was somewhat astounded to find the same woman at the door. She asked for our farm.

Justice James in the Court in Bane this torning, delivered the opinion of the court n the case of Housam against Kunscke, dicting a decree in layor of the complain recting a decree in layor of the complainant. Some twenty three years since, while Housan was serving in the army, a lot and two houses belonging to him on Capitol Hill, costing $1,000, were sold at a tax sale for $8 or $10. The purchaser, with his tax title, immediately proceeded to collect the reuts, and when Housam returned, finding out the situation, tried to recover his property, which he has now succeeded in doing. The court decides in the suit that the surrender of the property by Housam's tenant to the purchaser at the tax sale was illegal and that Housam was entitled to the property. The property is now very valuable, and hapdsome residences have been substituted for the little frame houses which formerly stood on the lot.
